What other holidays are celebrated in December in German-speaking countries?

German-speaking countries are home to several religious minorities, and some of them also celebrate holidays in December. Two of the most widely celebrated are Hanukkah and Ezid-Fest. Hanukkah is an important Jewish holiday that is celebrated for eight nights and days. The holiday usually occurs sometime in December, but it can vary year by year. Ezid-Fest is a holiday celebrated by the Yaszidis, a Kurdish-speaking minority. It is a time of fasting that ends with a big celebration.
